APIA, SAMOA ISLANDS

A PARADISE ON EARTH, WITH ITS WARM CULTURE AND BREATHTAKING SCENERIES

As the first independent state of Polynesia, Samoa is considered the cradle of the nation, a place where the Earth and the heart fuse seamlessly together. Incidentally, were one to translate the word "Samoa" into the traditional Polynesia dialect, they would find that the words "Sa" and "Moa" mean exactly that: earth and centre. Apia, Samoa's only town, is found central north coast of Upolu, Samoa's second largest island.

Originally a tiny village of just over 300 inhabitants (c. 1800), the town's population has grown to be just shy of 40,000. While a population of such size might mean forgetting traditional roots in favour of modern life, this has not been the case (too much) in Apia.

The Samoan way of life is still very much the order of the day; traditional open-sided houses with thatched roofs on platforms of coral or concrete, also known as 'fales', can be seen everywhere and nearly all of the population (including the policemen) wear the typical local dress; skirts, or 'lavalavas' for men, and long, mumu-style dresses for women.

The markets are bursting with culture and colour, selling everything from handicrafts to cuisine and local produce. If the idyllic setting of aquamarine pools of bluey green water, framed by low fringed palms and huge umbrella trees seems familiar, that's because it probably is. The island, and notably the southern resort of Lefaga, was used in the 1953 Gary Cooper classic Return to Paradise Beach. It is also the last place on Earth to see each day's sunset.

SIGHTS

- Robert Louis Stevenson Museum
- Samoa Cultural Village
- Palolo Deep Marine Reserve
- Immaculate Conception Cathedral
- Tiapapata Art Centre
- Tafatafa Beach

MAKETI FOU

This 24-hour market is a must-see shopping and social experience. Explore the vibrant atmosphere with local merchants, shoppers, and men playing games of mu (Samoan checkers), and offering primarily local produce. Souvenir hunters will find siapo (decorated bark cloth), woodcarvings, coconut-shell jewellery, lava-lava (wraparound sarongs) and T-shirts.

If you want a revitalizing drink, a cold niu (drinking coconut) would be a wonderful refreshment to make the hot climate more bearable.
