AKAROA, NEW ZEALAND

A HISTORIC SETTLEMENT NESTLED IN THE HEART OF AN ANCIENT VOLCANO

With pretty painted cottages, overflowing verdant balconies and street names such as Rue Lavaud and Fleur Lane, you could be forgiven for thinking that you have stepped onto the streets of Provence upon arrival in Akaroa. And yet, here you are, in New Zealand's South Island, less than 50 kilometres from Christchurch.

The French connection stems from 1838, when Captain Jean Francois Langlois acquired the land for six British pounds (and questionable circumstances) from the Maoris. He then travelled home to France in order to bring back anyone who might want to join him in his new life.

However, during his travels, the Treaty of Waitangi was signed (signatories included two Akaroa Maori chiefs) and New Zealand's first Governor, Hobson, declared sovereignty over the whole of New Zealand. Thus when Langlois and his settlers arrived back, they were faced with a choice: either return home to France or stay on. They chose the latter, and their legacy prevails.

There are many stunning places on the coast of New Zealand, but none of them can quite hold a candle to Akaroa. Visually, it is stunning. Surrounded by natural wonders, the town (Maori for "Long Harbour") stands on a peninsula formed by two volcanic cones, and is self-styled as nature's playground. Such a moniker might seem superlative for other destinations, but not here: sheep graze almost right to the water's edge, dolphins are regularly spotted in the many small, secluded bays and Lord of the Rings grandeur stretches as far as the eye can see.

SIGHTS

- The Giants House
- Akaroa Lighthouse
- Hinewai Reserve
- Akaroa Museum
- Misty Peaks Reserve
- Garden of Tane

FRENCH CUISINE

Akaroa is famous for its French cuisine and spectacular harbour. Stroll down the Rue Jolie or the Rue Lavaud, two of Akaroa's main streets, past bistros serving bouillabaisse and escargot, and you will feel as if you just walked through France. Given the French influence, it's no wonder wine and cheese are such an integrated part of the economy here. Try Barry's Bay handcrafted cheese or spend some of your day in the beautiful vineyards and enjoy the local wines.

You are advised to wear flat shoes with rubber soles. Please be careful when boarding the tender. To avoid risk of injury, keep hands and arms inside the tender at all times. Remain seated at all times and do not attempt to get out until assisted to do so by the ship's staff.

HAND WASHING & HAND SANITIZING

Keeping hands clean through improved hand hygiene is one of the most important steps we can take to avoid getting sick and spreading germs to others. Many diseases and conditions are spread by not washing hands with soap and clean, running water. Alcohol-based hand sanitizers can quickly reduce the number of germs on hands.
