DID YOU KNOW THE SURPRISING SUPERSTITIONS OF THE LION CITY?

Superstitions are like culinary specialties: every part of the world has its own, and discovering those of new countries is always an experience, if not tasty, then at least fun. Singapore is no exception to the rule in a South-East Asia that gives pride of place to the supernatural, and offers some surprising sparks of superstition that you can observe with a smile or take home with you, should they bring you luck... You never know.

Let's start with a belief that will please the cheapskates: in Singapore you don't gift watches or shoes. Watches symbolise the end and 'giving a clock' in Mandarin sounds very similar to 'attending a funeral'. To avoid bringing death, no watches or clocks are given. For shoes, the same battle: shoe is pronounced the same way as evil in Mandarin. So it's in very bad taste to give shoes. Two beliefs that can save a lot of money...

Also forbidden: cutting your nails after dark. In Singapore, it is believed that this practice attracts angry spirits who could bring misfortune on the house and its inhabitants. Never point at the moon either, especially if it is full. The risk? Finding yourself with the tips of your ears cut off in your sleep. Also to be avoided: whistling at night. This practice, which is harmless everywhere else, seems to please ghosts in this part of the world. Whistle at night and you could end up with a string of not always benevolent ghosts hanging around your neck. Fortunately, the best way to deal with this is to wash your feet and face as soon as you get home, so as to ward off the wandering spirits.

Another rule of the Lion City, which is also found in Vietnam, is that you don't take photos of three people. Two, yes. Four, yes, but three, no. It's bad luck for the person in the middle to be the first to die.

Finally, let's finish with a rather amusing and intriguing superstition involving new owners, a new flat or house and a pineapple. For good fortune to fall upon a new house and its owners or occupants, when they first enter their new home, they must knock on the door three times and shout 'huat ah' (good luck) as they roll a pineapple around. Derived from Feng Shui, this practice is said to purify the premises. The story doesn't say, however, whether a tin of pineapples will do the trick...

MAGICIAN ANDREW LEE

TONIGHT'S SHOW

▶ AT 9:30PM
THE SHOW LOUNGE, DECK 6

Andrew Lee is an Illusionist, a Mentalist and a Magician. He is Malaysia's Voted No.1 Magician. His unique acts have mesmerised audiences across Asia, Europe, Australia, India, and the Middle East.

In 2018, Andrew Lee made headlines over his Britain's Got Talent's audition and he started 2019 by blowing away some 650,000 people who attended the London New Year's Day Parade (LNYDP) 2019.

Battling dropping temperatures and a very cramped space – on top of nerves, Andrew Lee and his assistant, Cindy, conquered all and impressed the record turnout crowd. Lee, a former nutritionist and sales manager, was the first Malaysian magician to perform at the LNYDP.

Garnering worldwide attention and success, Illusionist and Mentalist, Andrew Lee took social media by storm earlier this year. He made Malaysia proud after his knife-wielding skills wow-ed Britain's Got Talent (BGT) 2018 judges, including Simon Cowell who is famed for being difficult to impress. Since then, Lee has been featured on Local and International press including LADBible, OK!, NST, The Star, The Sun and BBC, just to name a few.

Going beyond conjuring up shocks and surprises, Andrew creates personal connections with his audiences. He charms all ages through genuine friendliness, humour and up-close interactions. Although his craft encompasses trickery, the emotions and feelings stirred up are undeniably real. And in those moments, as their faces light up, it is as though time stands still. That for Andrew, is pure magic. Lee now performs all his shows in English, Japanese and a mix of Mandarin.

HAND WASHING & HAND SANITIZING

Keeping hands clean through improved hand hygiene is one of the most important steps we can take to avoid getting sick and spreading germs to others. Many diseases and conditions are spread by not washing hands with soap and clean, running water. Alcohol-based hand sanitizers can quickly reduce the number of germs on hands.
